Yellowstone NP

Our National Parks

Yellowstone National Park, the world's first national park, was created more than 140 years ago. Today, we reflect on its significance and its effect on America's conservation ideals. Since Yellowstone, 397 sites have become part of the National Park System. Some sites commemorate an influential person, event, or place. Other sites preserve America's wildlife and diverse beauty. Each site reminds us of the things we cherish—our history and environment.

America's National Park Service employs thousands of professionals dedicated to studying, preserving, and teaching about our national parks. Our National Park System has inspired countries around the world to preserve their precious resources and today serves as a benchmark for preservation and education.

As the National Park Service works to preserve America's treasures, it looks to others who are also dedicated to its mission. Eastern National is a nonprofit organization that provides educational products and services to national park visitors. Passport To Your National Parks® is one of many educational products and services offered by Eastern National.

The national parks exist for our enjoyment and the enjoyment of future generations. It is our obligation to respect the parks and do our part to protect them. As you visit, step lightly on the land, breathe deeply the air, reflect on our history, and take only memories with you when you leave.

How To Use Your Passport

With this Passport you have a guide to the national treasures in America—the national parks. Use this book to discover more about the parks near your home and throughout the nation. The national parks in America are incredibly diverse. They range from well-known areas of natural beauty such as Yellowstone and the Grand Canyon to historic Independence Hall and to lesser-known areas commemorating presidents, decisive battles, and famous Americans from all walks of life.

The Passport To Your National Parks program consists of the Passport book, interpretive stamps, and park cancellations.

The Passport Book

The Passport book is perfect for planning a trip to visit our national parks and for saving your memories after you've left. The Passport book dissects the country into nine geographic travel regions for easy reference. Each region is identified by color throughout the book. The Passport contains maps, park information, and a listing of all the national park areas in America. The book has places for you to collect the series of Passport stamps which are issued each year. It also has areas where you can get your book canceled when you visit a national park.

Cancellations

Whenever you visit a national park, be sure to get your Passport canceled. These ink markings record the name of the park and the date of your visit. Cancellations are free of charge and are usually available at a park's visitor center.

Passport Stamp Series

Each year since 1986 a series of Passport stamps has been issued. The annual set of ten stamps (one national and nine regional) are contained on one handy sheet. Simply detach the stamps and place them in the designated areas in your book. You may purchase the stamps at most national park areas or by mail (see page 112).

Proceeds from the sale of Passports and stamps are donated to the National Park Service. When you participate in the program you can feel proud that you are helping to protect, preserve, and improve America's national treasures. They are there for your enjoyment and education. Go out and discover as many as you can!

United States Geographical Regions

The National Stamp

Every year since 1986 the national stamp has served as a striking centerpiece in the Passport stamp series. The national stamp features parks that are celebrating special events or commemorating historic milestones. Previous stamps have honored the 100th anniversary of the Statue of Liberty, the 200th anniversary of the Constitution's signing, and the 150th anniversary of the first Women's Rights Convention.

Passport stamp sets may be purchased at national parks throughout the country and are also available by mail order (see page 112). The stamp may be placed on one of the pages in the following section.

By collecting these stamps, you are collecting a memento of the American experience. Your Passport will be filled with tributes to some of the most important places, people, and events in our nation's history. Our national parks play a crucial role in telling and preserving the story of America.

Regional Stamps & Cancellations

On the following pages you will find a section for each of the nine Passport geographic regions. There is a map, text, photos, and a listing of all the parks found in the region. There are also spaces to collect the regional stamps and park cancellations.

Throughout the United States there are magnificent treasures waiting for you to discover. There are places of great natural beauty and historic wealth – from the tropical Caribbean to the Alaskan wilderness, from the plains of the Midwest to the rocky New England coast. By visiting these areas you unlock the doors to America's past, present, and future.

A park from each region is featured on a stamp as part of the annual Passport stamp series. The stamps also include descriptive information about the park. Collecting the stamps is fun and lets you visually explore our country's great heritage. You may obtain the stamps at national parks or by mail (see page 112 for mail order information).

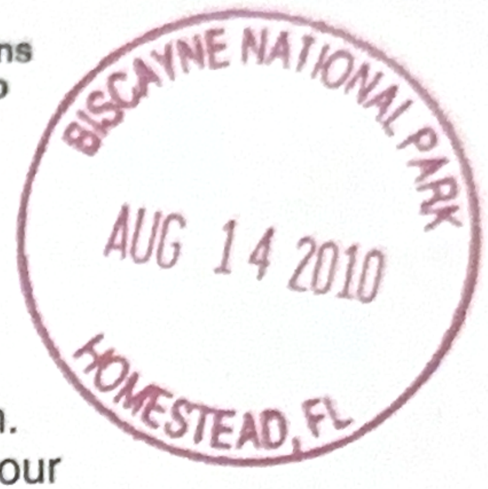
Park cancellations are color-coded to match each region's official color.



The best way to discover America's treasures is to visit them. Be sure to have your Passport canceled whenever you visit a national park. Cancellations are great reminders of your travels since they feature the park's name and the date of your visit. Cancellation stations are usually found at the park visitor center. (Please note that not all national park areas have cancellation stations.)

"I always consider the settlement of America with reverence and wonder." JOHN ADAMS, 1765.

John Adams, 2nd U.S. president, possessed acute intellect and insight. A student of history, he would be delighted by the national parks of the North Atlantic region.

Salem Maritime NHS preserves the age of the great sailing ships, when trade with the Far East brought fortune to New England captains. New Bedford Whaling NHP interprets the "world capital of the whaling industry." The promise of industrial America surfaced early in New England. Ironmaking at Saugus Iron Works dates to the mid-17th century. Substantial manufacturing complexes like those at Lowell NHP and Springfield Armory NHS prospered during the 19th century. The wealth accumulated during the industrial revolution is displayed at Vanderbilt Mansion NHS.

Minute Man NHP

Adams helped lead the American struggle for independence. His family is commemorated at Adams NHP. Boston NHP focuses on the colonial unrest that produced the Battle of Bunker Hill and exchanges of musket fire at Lexington and Concord (Minute Man NHP). Fort Stanwix NM and Saratoga NHP protect critical battlefields while Federal Hall N MEM celebrates freedom of the press and the Bill of Rights. Hamilton Grange N MEM preserves the home of Founder and Secretary of the Treasury Alexander Hamilton.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy NHS

Other New Yorkers followed in Hamilton's footsteps: Martin Van Buren became the 8th president, Theodore Roosevelt, the 26th, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, the 32nd. General Grant N MEM honors Grant's leadership as Civil War general and 18th president. The birthplace of John F. Kennedy, 35th president, is preserved in Massachusetts.

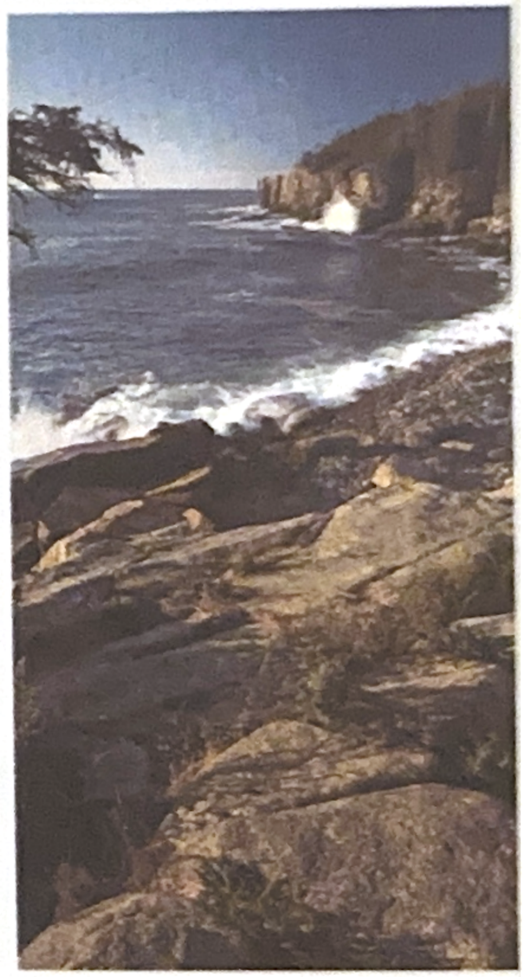
Considering Adams's dedication to liberty, he could relate to others who sought to fulfill America's promise. Boston African American NHS links over a dozen sites, offering a cross section of urban black life in New England. Millions of immigrants followed their own American dreams, entering the U.S. via Castle Clinton and Ellis Island. The long struggle for gender equality is interpreted at Women's Rights NHP.

Fire Island NS

Eleanor Roosevelt NHS chronicles Mrs. Roosevelt's quest for human rights. Roger Williams N MEM remembers Williams's pioneering search for religious freedom.

Adams would enjoy the enduring urban landscapes created by Frederick Law Olmsted, the elegant sculpture of Augustus Saint-Gaudens, the literary talents of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and Theodore Roosevelt (Sagamore Hill NHS), and the impressionistic artistry of J. Alden Weir (Weir Farm NHS).

Acadia NP



The primeval American wildness that confronted European settlers can still be found today. Acadia NP's rocky beaches and granite cliffs still resist the Atlantic Ocean's pounding surf. The ocean's waves rhythmically wash the sloping sandy beaches of Cape Cod and Fire Island national seashores. Many of the 30 islands of Boston Harbor Islands NRA remain undeveloped. The Appalachian NST stretches 2,100 miles from Maine to Georgia. The Delaware River flows for 73 untamed miles through Upper Delaware SRR. Even within America's largest urban area, the beaches and marshes in Gateway NRA teem with a wide variety of plant and animal life. At Marsh-Billings-Rockefeller NHP the conservation movement that saved some of these very parks is explored.

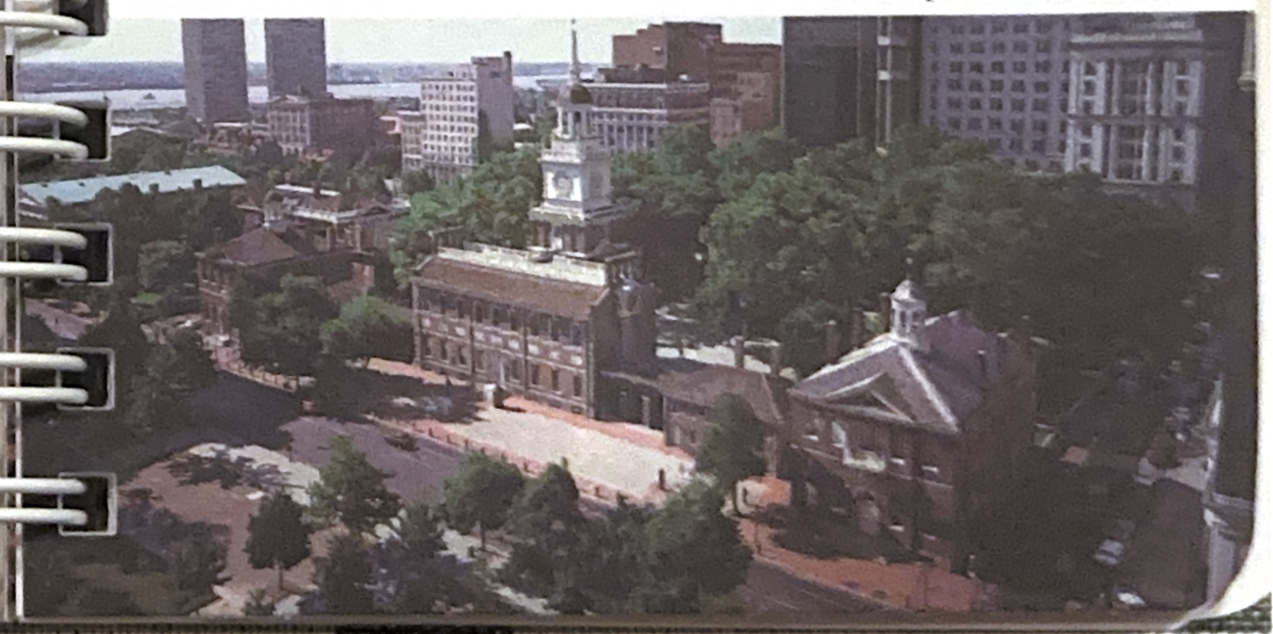
Mid-Atlantic Region

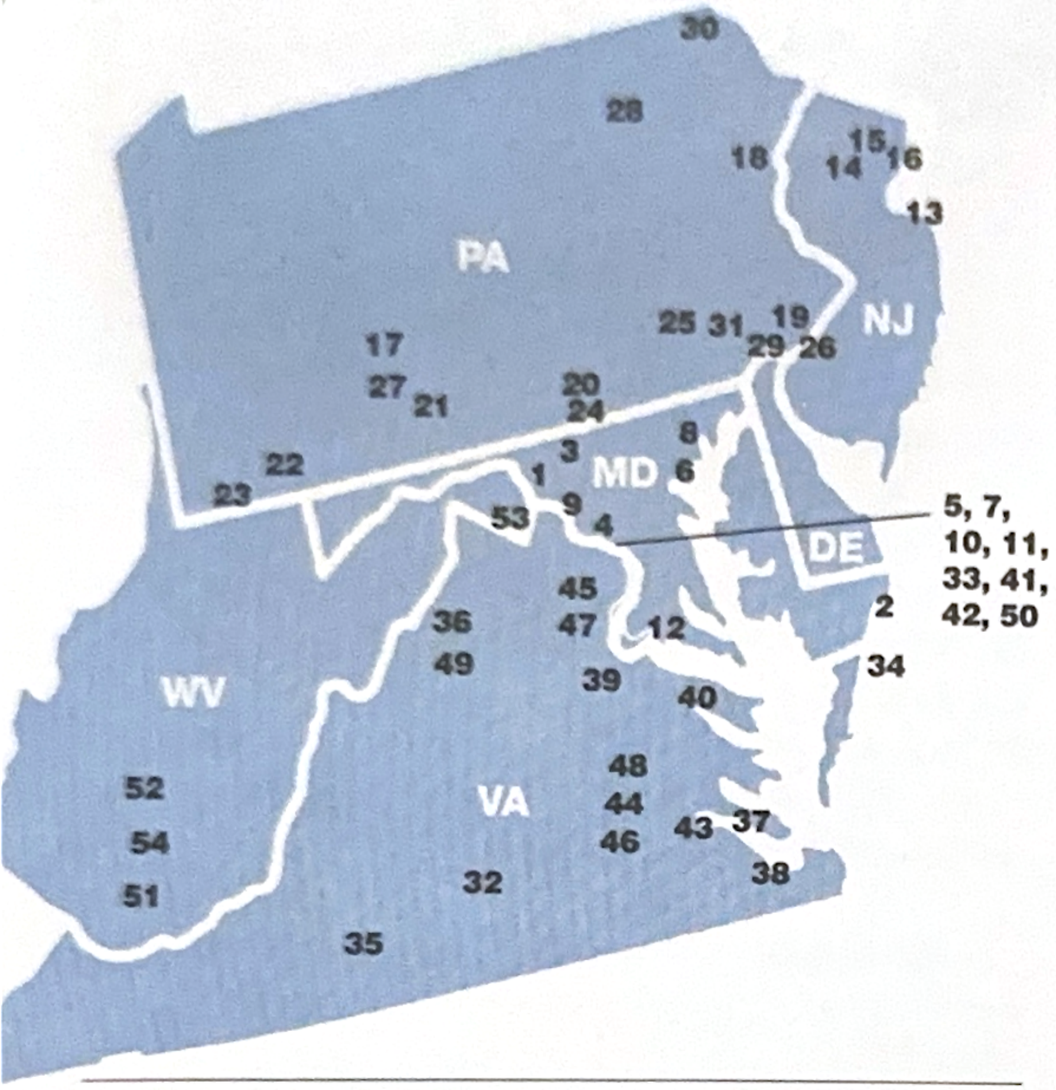
For centuries, North America promised a new and brighter future. A desire to begin again motivated many of the 17th- and 18th-century immigrants who colonized the land. The earliest residents of Jamestown (Colonial NHP) braved the open seas clinging to dreams of a better tomorrow.

At Fort Necessity, intense competition among European empires jumped the ocean, igniting the French & Indian War. Government regulations enacted thousands of miles away antagonized the increasingly independent men and women of North America.

No site captures this growing spirit of revolution better than Independence NHP. Located in Philadelphia, the park includes Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell. Other parks commemorate the leaders who carried the nation through its formative years – the essential role played by George Washington, the dilemma faced by moderate revolutionaries like Thomas Stone, and the contributions made by Europeans who adopted the American cause (Thaddeus Kosciuszko N MEM).

Independence NHP





Mid-Atlantic parks also preserve the hallowed ground of conflict, where soldiers huddled through winter encampments (Valley Forge NHP and Morristown NHP), where the Americans and their French allies achieved the decisive victory of the American Revolution at Yorktown, and where the garrison at Fort McHenry resisted British bombardment during the War of 1812.

Independence offered unparalleled possibilities for growth and expansion. Hopewell Furnace NHS represents the expanding American iron industry. Friendship Hill NHS commemorates the promise of trans-Appalachian migration. Hampton NHS traces the growth and decline of a Maryland agricultural empire built on slave labor. Allegheny Portage Railroad NHS and Chesapeake & Ohio Canal NHP preserve important transit routes into the interior. Steamtown NHS interprets the story of steam railroading.

The Civil War raged across the region. These parks commemorate the bloodshed that preserved the Union: Manassas NBP, Harpers Ferry NHP, Fredericks-

Freed from slavery, African Americans like Booker T. Washington helped determine America's future. Humanitarians like Clara Barton and Maggie L. Walker focused on improving the quality of life. Author and poet Edgar Allan Poe reshaped literature, and Thomas Edison's inventive genius contributed the phonograph, incandescent lights, and motion picture cameras.

Delaware Water Gap NRA is within easy driving distance of New York City and Philadelphia. Assateague Island NS preserves 37 miles of Atlantic beach. Around Washington, D.C., visitors can enjoy Catoctin Mountain, Greenbelt, Piscataway, Great Falls, Prince William Forest, and Wolf Trap parks. Shenandoah NP offers spectacular views of the Shenandoah Valley. Bluestone NSR, Gauley River NRA, and New River Gorge NR offer fishing, hiking, and excellent whitewater boating.

This park system comprises numerous parks, parkways, and reservations in the Washington metropolitan area.*

Frederick Douglass, author and abolitionist, knew our nation's capital well. He delivered an 1877 lecture that analyzed the city's assets. "Great cities," he said, "like great men, have their distinctive, individual characters and qualities." Visitors today will still recognize those qualities.

George Washington chose the site for the capital and recruited Pierre L'Enfant as designer. Paris-born L'Enfant drew inspiration from Versailles and planned a city with broad avenues and monumental buildings to give it a sense of permanence (Pennsylvania Avenue NHS, the White House, and the Old Post Office Tower). Still under construction when the federal government arrived from Philadelphia in 1800, the District changed significantly after the Civil War. Authorized by Congress in 1783, the Washington Monument was finished and dedicated in 1885. At 555 feet, it towers over the city's other majestic features. Its simple, classic design has come to symbolize the city.

Six other memorials now commemorate U.S. presidents. The Thomas Jefferson Memorial occupies a beautiful location adjacent to the Tidal Basin. Ornamental cherry trees surround it with pink blossoms each spring. Daniel Chester

Washington Monument

French's statue of Abraham Lincoln dominates the Lincoln Memorial, often an inspirational backdrop for celebrations and rallies. The Potomac River flows around Theodore Roosevelt Island and the Lyndon Baines Johnson Memorial Grove on the Potomac. The Franklin Delano Roosevelt Memorial, dedicated in 1997, contains four outdoor galleries portraying Roosevelt's four terms in office. The Korean War Veterans Memorial and Vietnam Veterans Memorial pay tribute to those who served and died in wartime.

Korean War Veterans Memorial

While L'Enfant's original plan included a formal park near the Capitol (National Mall), the heavily wooded Rock Creek Park dates to 1890. Today, with 1,754 acres, it forms one of the largest urban parks in America.

Ford's Theatre NHS preserves both the theater where John Wilkes Booth shot Lincoln and the William Petersen house, where Lincoln died. Frederick Douglass played an active role in encouraging recruitment of African Americans for the military and was an adviser to Lincoln during the war. His home is preserved as a national historic site.

Mary McLeod Bethune made notable contributions to higher education and was intensely interested in issues affecting women. Her life embodied Douglass's vision for the national capital as "a place where the best men and the best women from all sections of our widely extended country shall delight to meet."

In the minds of some, the Civil War defines the South. The first shots roared from Confederate batteries arching above Charleston Harbor toward Fort Sumter. Kentucky-born Abraham Lincoln acted to stop the secession challenge. Within months the invasion of the South had begun. Union troops bombarded Fort Pulaski, demonstrating the weakness of masonry forts. The fall of Fort Donelson provided Federal troops with a victory, a success they compounded with the repulse of a Confederate assault at Shiloh. The Union strategy of dividing the South continued at Stones River and, after a 47-day siege, Vicksburg fell giving the Union control of the Mississippi River. The North triumphed at Chattanooga in November 1863. Maj. Gen. William Sherman captured Atlanta (Kennesaw Mountain NBP) and began his "March to the Sea." Confederate cavalry, led by Maj. Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, harassed Union troops (Brices Cross Roads NBS) until neutralized (Tupelo NB).

Big South Fork NRRA

Andersonville NHS, located on the site of the notorious P.O.W. camp, commemorates the sacrifice made by all American prisoners of war. Andrew Johnson NHS interprets President Johnson's role in the postwar politics of Reconstruction.

Several sites preserve and commemorate the cultures of native peoples (Russell Cave NM, Timucuan Ecological & Historic Preserve, and Ocmulgee NM). Horseshoe Bend NMP interprets Andrew Jackson's victory over the Upper Creek Indian Confederacy in 1814.

Earlier, European powers struggled for New World control. The English established footholds (Fort Frederica NM and Fort Raleigh NHS) as did the French (Fort Caroline N MEM). The Danes entered the competition in the Caribbean (Christiansted NHS). But it was the Spanish who explored or contested much of the Southeast (Castillo de San Marcos NM, De Soto N MEM and Fort Matanzas NM) as well as many Caribbean Islands (San Juan NHS and Salt River Bay NHP and Ecological Preserve).

During the American Revolution, sectional rivalries divided southerners at Moores Creek and Kings Mountain where Loyalists battled Patriots. Elsewhere, the British conducted a vigorous but futile campaign (Cowpens NB, Guilford Courthouse NMP, and Ninety Six NHS) to defeat the American army. Following the Revolution, the U.S. built its own empire beyond the Appalachians (Cumberland Gap NHP).

Great Smoky Mountains NP

The plantation slave economy is interpreted at Charles Pinckney NHS, Natchez Trace Parkway, and Natchez NHP. Southern mountain culture can be studied at Blue Ridge Parkway and Great Smoky Mountains NP. Stories of the struggle of African Americans for freedom and equal rights (Tuskegee Institute NHS and Martin Luther King, Jr., NHS) exist side-by-side with commemorations of creative genius (Carl Sandburg Home NHS and Wright Brothers N MEM) and political success (Jimmy Carter NHS).

There are beaches and reefs along the coastline: Canaveral, Gulf Islands, Cumberland Island, Cape Hatteras and Cape Lookout national seashores; Biscayne and Dry Tortugas national parks. Marsh and swamp form a "River of Grass" through Everglades NP. The clear turquoise waters of the Caribbean surround Virgin Islands NP and Buck Island Reef NM. River areas include Little River Canyon and Big Cypress national preserves, Chattahoochee River and Big South Fork national recreation areas, Obed Wild & Scenic River, Congaree NP, and the underground water-formed Mammoth Cave.

Exploration, westward expansion, and homesteaders are well represented by the parks in the Midwest region. Homestead NM of America preserves a 160-acre land claim. The town of Nicodemus was founded by African American settlers in Kansas. Jefferson National Expansion Memorial's 630-foot stainless steel arch pays homage to those who accepted the challenge of the continent.

Drawn into the interior, settlers migrated west by land and water. En route they encountered the cultures of native peoples represented by features at several parks: the carefully shaped mounds at Effigy Mounds NM and Hopewell Culture NHP and the dark, red rock quarried for ceremonial pipes at Pipestone NM.

Many pioneers trekked past prominent natural landmarks like Scotts Bluff on their way to Oregon. Others, moving slowly southwest, crossed the tallgrass prairie of Kansas and welcomed the protection offered by Fort Scott and Fort Larned as they traveled the Santa Fe Trail. Union and Confederate troops fought to control these important routes to the West (Wilson's Creek NB).

While many migrated along the Santa Fe or Oregon trails, others chose to follow the routes provided by lakes and rivers. Ringed with sandy, sometimes craggy coastlines, dotted by offshore islands (Indiana Dunes, Sleeping Bear Dunes, Apostle Islands, Pictured Rocks national lakeshores), the Great Lakes provided a natural highway. Interaction between whites and Indians and the trading that resulted is interpreted at Grand Portage NM and Voyageurs NP. George Rogers Clark NHP interprets the struggle for control of the Ohio River Valley during the American Revolution. Perry's Victory & International Peace Memorial commemorates Oliver H. Perry's naval victory during the War of 1812.

Many midwestern cities built success on the waterborne commerce of the region's lakes and rivers (Cuyahoga Valley NP). Natural resources—fish, timber, and minerals—flowed to market via ships of steadily increasing bulk (Keweenaw NHP).

Indiana Dunes NL

Numerous U.S. presidents were born or resided in the Midwest. Abraham Lincoln's boyhood home in Indiana and his adult home in Illinois interpret his midwestern roots. Ulysses S. Grant and Harry S Truman lived in Missouri, James A. Garfield and William Howard Taft in Ohio, and Herbert Hoover in Iowa.

Midwestern creative genius produced some startling results. Wilbur and Orville Wright's early aviation experiments are commemorated at Dayton Aviation Heritage NHP. The site also honors the life of African American poet Paul Laurence Dunbar. George Washington Carver NM examines its namesake's scientific contributions. Carver was a member of the faculty at Tuskegee Institute. The U.S. Supreme Court heard a case that originated in Topeka, Kansas, and took the bold step of outlawing racial school segregation (Brown v. Board of Education NHS).

Midwesterners respect nature, particularly the rivers that flow through the area (Mississippi NRRA, and the Saint Croix, Ozark, and Niobrara/Missouri national scenic rivers). Agate Fossil Beds NM preserves fossils of mammals while Isle Royale NP protects one of the wildest places in the United States.

Grand Portage NM

The history of the Southwest documents a convergence of many peoples and cultures. Settlers migrating from east to west passed through the homelands of native peoples, across the vast Louisiana Purchase, and into territory colonized by the Spanish.

Arkansas Post N MEM traces the long history of French and American trade with the Quapaw Indians. Jean Lafitte NHP celebrates the ethnic diversity of Louisiana and interprets the Battle of New Orleans. Fort Smith NHS focuses on the extension of federal justice to the frontier. Fort Union NM and Fort Davis NHS preserve two of the isolated outposts that protected important trails into Texas and New Mexico, routes that the Union victory at Pea Ridge maintained under federal control. Washita Battlefield NHS interprets the struggle of the Southern Great Plains tribes to maintain their traditional ways of life.

Fort Union NM

When migrating settlers poured into the Southwest, they discovered not only native peoples but also well-established Spanish colonies. Salinas Pueblo Missions NM, San Antonio Missions NHP, and Pecos NHP preserve Spanish missions and native Pueblos. The Mexican War is interpreted at Palo Alto Battlefield NHP while Chamizal N MEM commemorates the treaty that ended a century-old dispute between Mexico and the U.S.

Southwestern parks also preserve a 12th-century Pueblo Indian community at Aztec Ruins NM, the cliff houses of Bandelier NM and Gila Cliff Dwellings NM, the extensive architectural remains of Chaco Culture NHP, the petroglyphs of El Morro NM and Petroglyph NM, and the quarries used for 10,000 years at Alibates Flint Quarries NM.

Big Bend NP

The landscapes of the Southwest offer their own catalog of diversity. Big Thicket N PRES is referred to as a biological crossroads. The Texas hill country molded the character of Lyndon Johnson. Capulin Volcano NM includes a geologically recent but now inactive volcano. El Malpais NM, "badlands" in Spanish, is rugged and volcanic. Guadalupe Mountains NP protects a 50-mile-long mountain range, once a barrier reef. Big Bend NP transcends any single natural zone, ranging from a peak measured at 7,835 feet to the bottom of the Rio Grande River. The river flows for 191 miles through the Rio Grande WSR and then into Amistad NRA. In Arkansas, the Buffalo River flows free for 132 miles past multicolored bluffs. In northern Texas, Lake Meredith NRA provides recreational opportunity. Chickasaw NRA contains mineral springs and in Hot Springs NP there are 47 thermal springs. White Sands NM's glistening dunes provide an interesting contrast to the sandy Gulf Coast beaches of Padre Island NS. You can also explore the limestone caves of Carlsbad Caverns NP.

The Rocky Mountain region includes many of the great natural treasures of the National Park System. Here are parks that provide powerful doses of wildness. They offer wonderful vistas that overwhelm the eye and inspire the imagination.

Straddling the Continental Divide, Rocky Mountain NP includes 78 peaks taller than 12,000 feet. Naturalist John Muir claimed that Glacier NP's mountains, meadows, and lakes provided the "best care-killing scenery on the continent."

Glacier NP

Herds of bison again roam the grasslands of Theodore Roosevelt NP, symbolizing hope for other endangered species. The Colorado River continues to sculpt the 300-million-year-old rocks of Canyonlands NP. Farther up the Colorado in Arches NP, eroded formations lift the spirit and entertain the eye. What potent medicine might an invisible wizard be brewing in the boiling hot springs of the world's first national park, Yellowstone? Who opens the subterranean valve that releases Old Faithful's burst high into the mountain air? What strong, vigorous force must have cracked and tilted the earth to form the jagged Teton Range in Grand Teton NP? The peaks that tower above Jackson Hole are called the Cathedral Group, acknowledging their inspirational qualities.

Arches NP

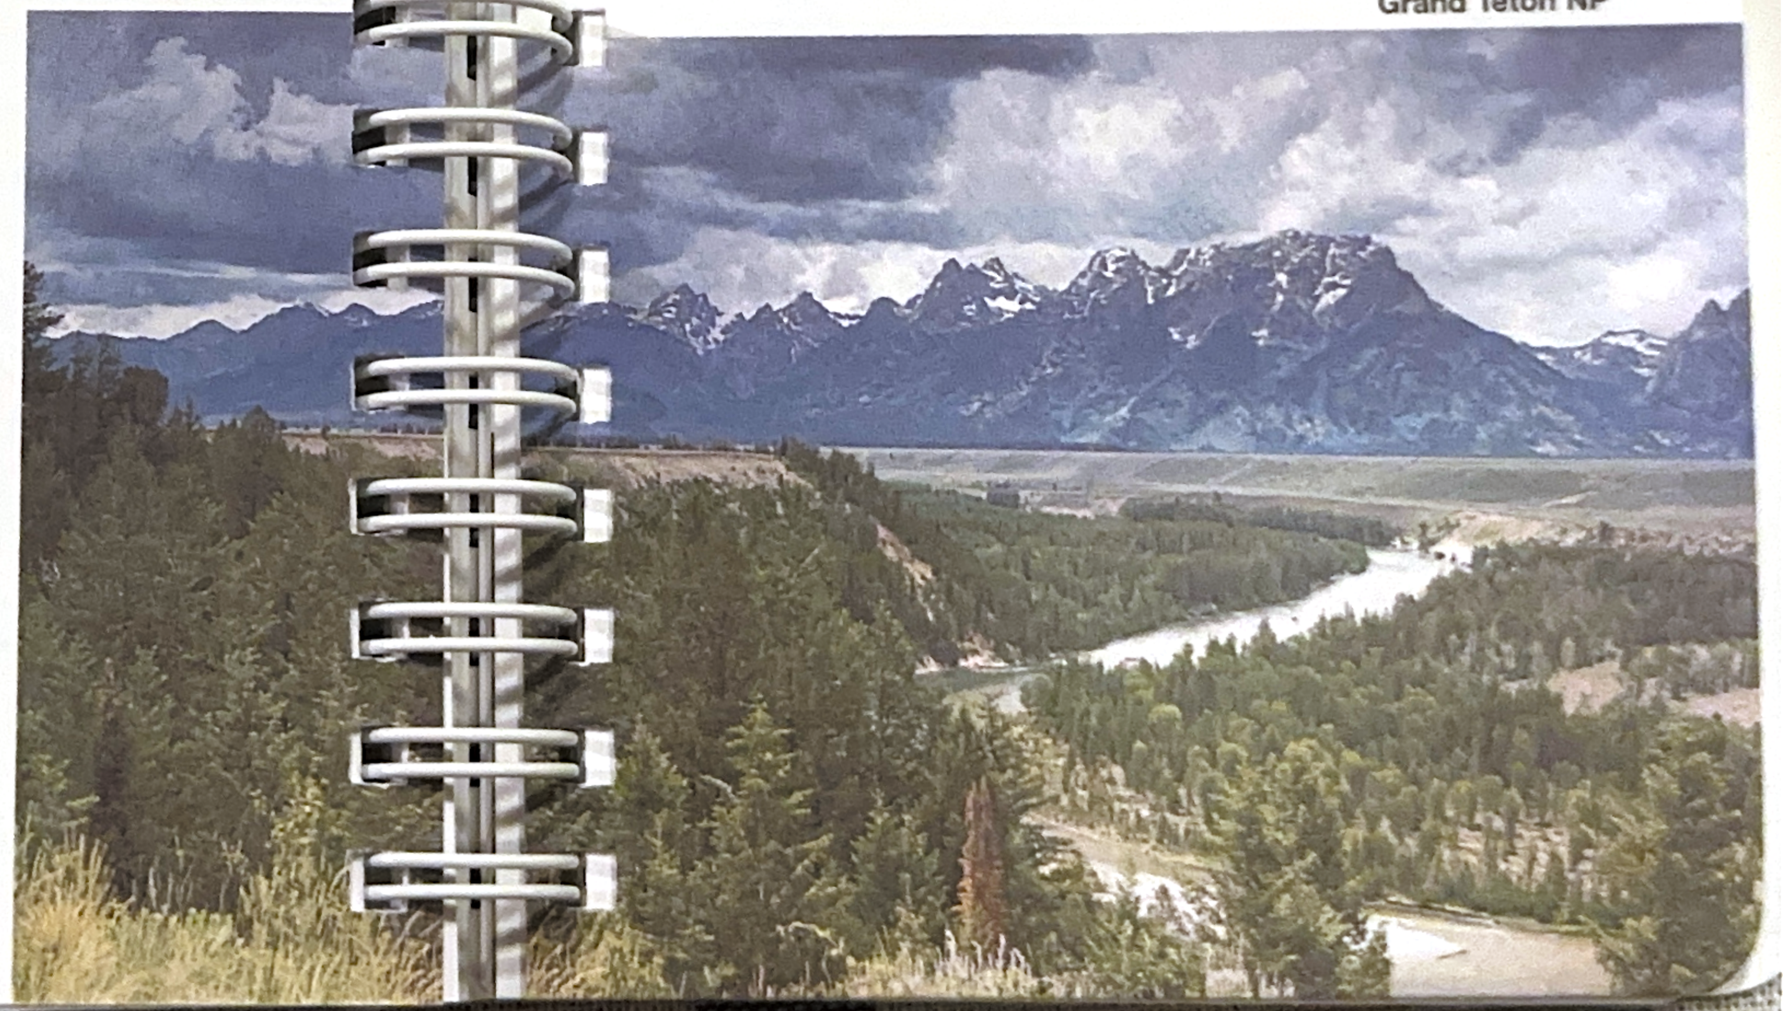
The Paiute Indians believed that those who performed bad deeds would be turned to stone and added to the monoliths of Bryce Canyon NP. Like colossal textbooks, sheer canyon walls, huge rocky amphitheaters, and spectacular natural bridges in Black Canyon of the Gunnison NP, Colorado NM, Cedar Breaks NM, Glen Canyon NRA, Natural Bridges NM, Rainbow Bridge NM, and Zion NP contain ancient geological records. Other parks reveal the secrets of life forms now extinct, from the large reptilian creatures of Dinosaur NM to the small insects, seeds, and leaves at Florissant Fossil Beds NM. Fossil Butte NM contains a variety of fossils that includes plants, fish, and birds.

Thousands of years of persistent wind piled sand grains into the formations of Great Sand Dunes NP. The white domes of Capitol Reef NP reminded some early explorers of the Capitol in Washington, D.C. Others thought they saw the shapes of ocean reefs. How long did it take limestone in Jewel Cave NM, Wind Cave NP, and Timpanogos Cave NM to dissolve into intricate formations? What forces scarred the 865-foot hardened column of volcanic rock that forms Devils Tower NM, perhaps the claws of the Great Bear in native stories? What explains such a radical contrast of landscape, the flat grasslands side-by-side with the abruptly inhospitable, jagged, eroded landscapes of Badlands NP?

Nature did not work alone to transform the region's landscapes. For centuries, native peoples used and adapted their environment, developing impressive cultures that included multistoried cliff pueblos, ceremonial shrines, farms, and petroglyphs (Mesa Verde NP, Yucca House NM, and Hovenweep NM). Farther to the north, the Northern Plains Indians created seasonal communities like those preserved by Knife River Indian Villages NHS.

Grand Teton NP



The east-west exodus of settlers through the area also had an impact on the region. Grant-Kohrs Ranch NHS preserves a large 19th-century cattle range ranch. The transcontinental railroad, completed at Promontory Summit in Utah in 1869 (Golden Spike NHS) pierced the American interior and linked the coasts. Whites built forts to support trade with native peoples, to protect and supply migratory trails, and to serve as staging areas for military campaigns (Bent's Old Fort NHS, Fort Union Trading Post NHS, Fort Laramie NHS). Increased migration often led to heightened tensions between Anglo and native cultures. Big Hole NB documents the struggle between the U.S. Army and the Nez Perce while Little Bighorn Battlefield NM marks the site of the Sioux and Northern Cheyenne victory over George A. Custer and the 7th Cavalry.

Sculptor Gutzon Borglum looked at a granite mountain in South Dakota and saw the faces of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, and Theodore Roosevelt (Mount Rushmore N MEM) while engineers imagined lakes that would address the increasing demand for outdoor activity (Bighorn Canyon and Curecanti national recreation areas).

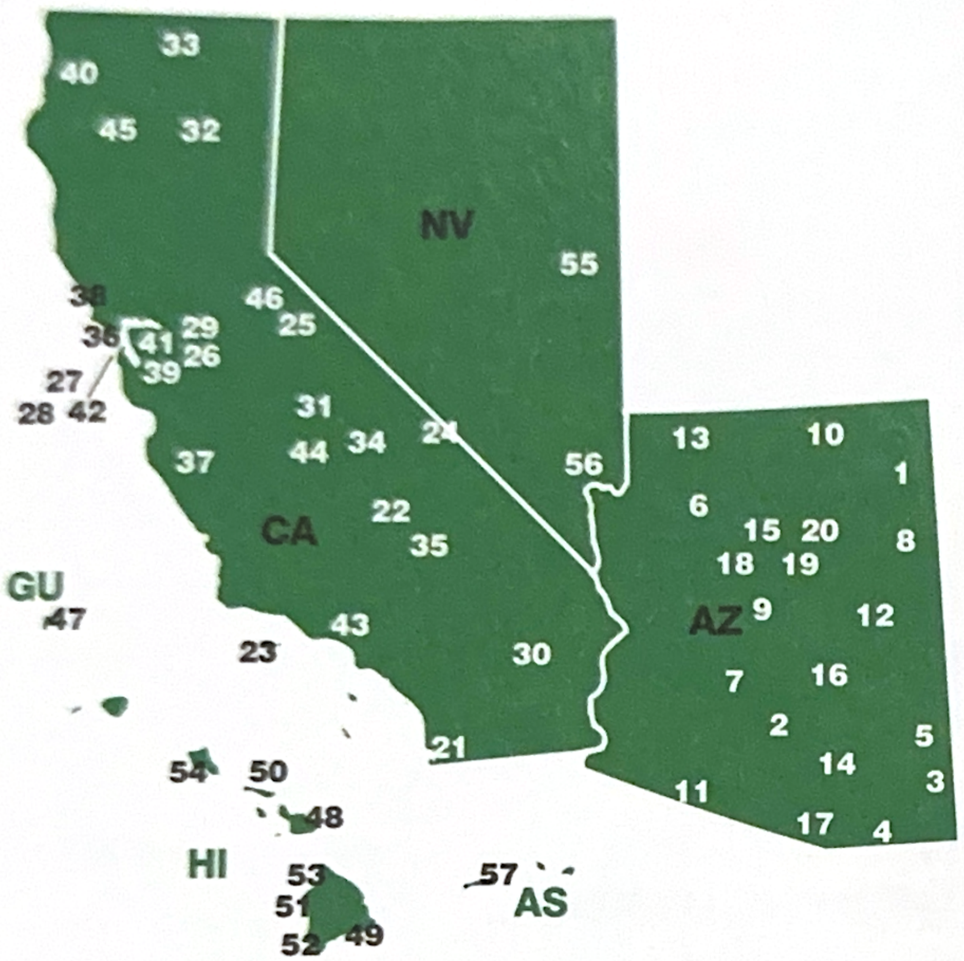
Western Region



To many of us, the West and nature have become interwoven. Travelers shared wonderful accounts of the West's primeval places, natural worlds that reached to the heavens and sank to the depths of creation. They offered descriptions that challenged the mind and touched the heart.

Few crafted more gifted accounts than John Muir. Many credit Muir with the movement that established Yosemite NP, a place where the snows in the Sierra Mountains "melt into music" and "every rock . . . seems to glow with life."

Sequoia & Kings Canyon national parks protect extensive groves of the world's largest trees, a contrast to the northern Arizona desert of Petrified Forest NP, where ancient tree trunks lie fossilized. Shaggy-limbed Joshua trees, the perfectly adapted saguaro – the largest native cactus in the U.S. – and the distinctive desert plants in Organ Pipe Cactus NM teach lessons in plant diversity, adaptation and survival. In even the driest environments there is life and beauty; 3,000-year-old bristlecone pines survive in Death Valley NP and Joshua trees thrive in parts of the Mojave N PRES.

The Grand Canyon has been described as "a world of beauty in itself," a great unknown etched deep into the earth's crust waiting to be rediscovered. Visitors to Lehman Caves (Great Basin NP) can explore an underground world of tunnels and limestone galleries. Other parks allow us to look even deeper, literally into the core of the planet. The volcanic forces that shaped these parks (Chiricahua, Devils Postpile, Lava Beds, Sunset Crater, and Pinnacles national monuments and Lassen Volcanic, Haleakalā, and Hawai'i Volcanoes national parks) remind us of the essence and the resilience of life. They preserve a variety of apparently hostile environments – blackened rocks and glowing lava, windswept peaks and deep craters, steam-sulfur vents, and cold icy-blue water. Yet when we explore these parks, we find life, specially adapted vegetation growing in unexpected areas.

When we have had enough of desert sands or steaming lava, we can turn toward the refreshingly inviting water of the region's islands (Channel Islands NP), beautiful beaches (Point Reyes NS and Golden Gate NRA), and lakes (Whiskeytown and Lake Mead national recreation areas).

Throughout the region, parks preserve and commemorate both contemporary Indian cultures and the history of the people who built and then mysteriously abandoned their cliffside cities and Pueblos (Canyon de Chelly, Casa Grande Ruins, Hohokam Pima, Montezuma Castle, Navajo, Tonto, Tumacacori, Tuzigoot, Walnut Canyon, and Wupatki national monuments). The National Park of American Samoa interprets a 3,000-year-old Polynesian culture.

Other historical parks interpret the European explorers who trekked north from Mexico (Coronado N MEM and Cabrillo NM) and the American settlers who arrived from the East (San Francisco Maritime NHP, Fort Point, Hubbell Trading Post and Fort Bowie national historic sites, and Pipe Spring NM). Along the routes of migration and discovery, settlers transplanted seeds of their old way of life into their hopes for new opportunity. The West offered a new environment for creativity (Eugene O'Neill NHS).

Point Reyes NS

The struggle for the democracies during World War II are reflected in the pain and sacrifice at Pearl Harbor and Guam (USS Arizona Memorial and War in the Pacific NHP). Manzanar NHS tells the story of the internment of Japanese Americans.

Surrounded by the Pacific Ocean, on the Hawaiian Islands, several parks preserve the pre-European history and customs of the Hawaiian peoples (Kaloko-Honokōhau and Pu'uhonua o Hōnaunau national historical parks and Pu'ukoholā Heiau NHS) while Kalaupapa NHP commemorates the lives of Hansen's disease (leprosy) patients once exiled at Kalaupapa and Kalawao.

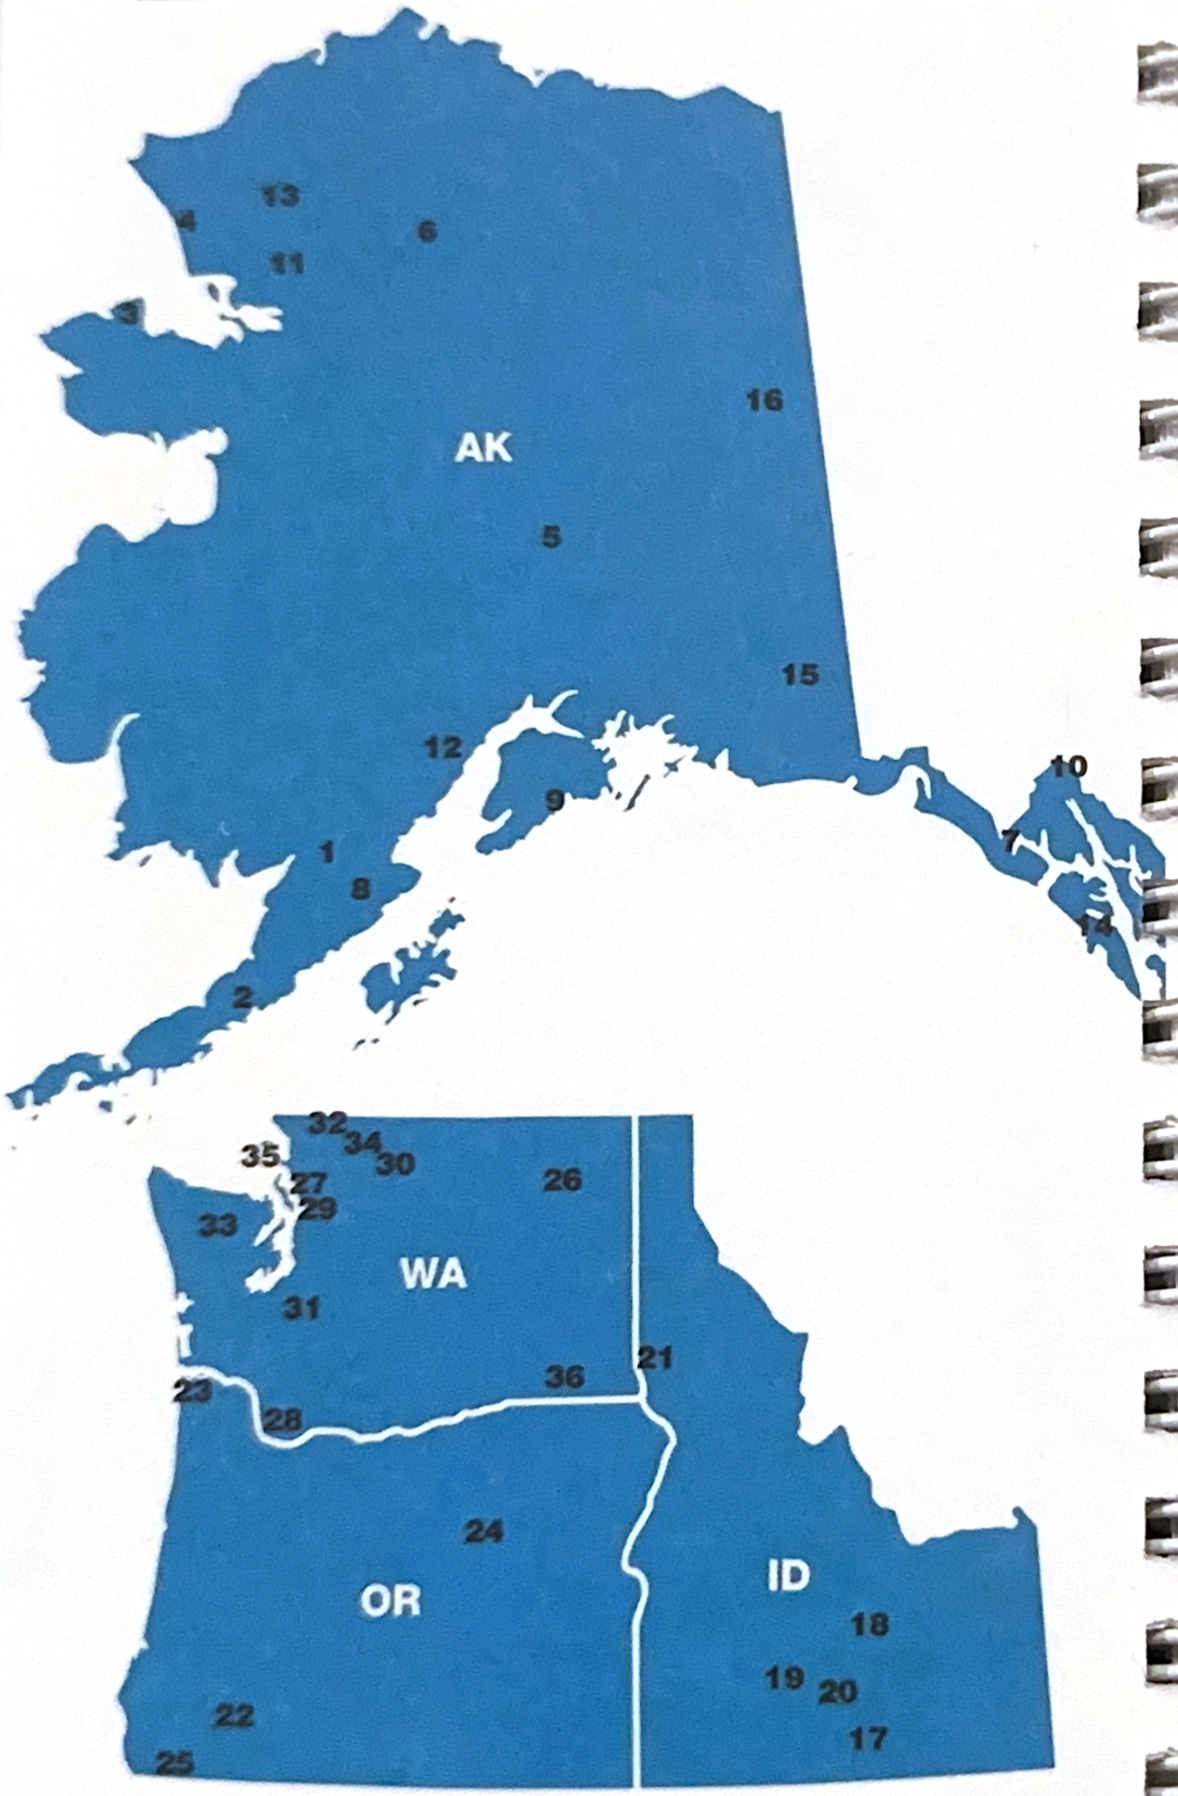
Pacific Northwest & Alaska Region



In the Pacific Northwest and certainly Alaska, nature demands respect. The huge wilderness parks of the region seem to defy any thoughts of control. Native peoples understood this and two parks commemorate the traditional cultures they developed (Cape Krusenstern NM & Nez Perce NHP). Lewis and Clark's expedition of scientific discovery brought them into contact with many native peoples, including the Nez Perce, on the way to their camp on the Oregon coast (Lewis and Clark NHP). Ebey's Landing NH RES, overlooking the Puget Sound, illustrates modern concern with natural protection.

Russians in Alaska (Sitka NHP) and English fur traders in Washington (Fort Vancouver NHS) focused on the economic value of nature's bounty. Control for the region's raw materials led to conflict. For years, the U.S. and British governments squabbled over the international boundary of the Oregon Territory and ownership of San Juan Island. Cultural conflicts between Christian missionaries and Cayuse Indians flared as well (Whitman Mission NHS). When gold was discovered in the Yukon Territory, the stampede for wealth blinded many unprepared prospectors to the real life-and-death challenges of Alaska's climate (Klondike Gold Rush NHP and Yukon-Charley Rivers N PRES).

Lewis and Clark NHP

Most of the region's parks exist to celebrate and protect the natural world of plants and animals, glaciers and volcanoes, lakes, rivers, and beaches.

Mount McKinley—called Denali, "the high one," by native Athapaskans—rises higher than any other peak in North America (20,320 feet). Wrangell–St. Elias NP & PRES is the largest unit in the National Park System and protects the continent's largest number of glaciers. Located entirely above the Arctic Circle, Gates of the Arctic NP & PRES provides an ideal habitat for the largest American mammals (grizzlies, caribou, and moose) and the most fragile lichens and moss. Bering Land Bridge N PRES commemorates a prehistoric era when the continents of Asia and North America touched. Glacier Bay NP & PRES is noted for the resounding noise created by its main attraction. As huge blocks of ice break off advancing glaciers and fall into Glacier Bay, they create what Tlingit Indians called "white thunder."

Aniakchak NM & PRES includes one of the largest dry caldera in the world. The Alaska brown bear, the world's largest carnivore, thrives on salmon in the rivers of Katmai NP &

Crater Lake NP

PRES. Alagnak Wild River provides 69 miles of whitewater boating and serves as spawning ground for five species of salmon. Lake Clark NP & PRES contains two active volcanoes. Kenai Fjords NP includes the 300-square-mile Harding Icefield and a mountain range that is sinking. In Kobuk Valley NP, the 25-square-mile Great Kobuk Sand Dunes, composed of winddriven debris from glaciers, continues to grow. Crater Lake NP protects the deepest, and perhaps the bluest, lake in the U.S. There are 26 named glaciers in Mount Rainier NP, one of the largest glacial systems found on any single peak. Containing 300 glaciers, North Cascades NP is home to nearly half the glaciers found in the lower 48 states. Olympic NP preserves the finest Pacific Northwest rain forest in the U.S. Isolated by Ice Age glaciers, the lush Olympic Peninsula supported evolution of 16 unique species of plants and animals. In Oregon Caves NM, groundwater bored its way through marble bedrock. John Day Fossil Beds NM preserves fossils from five epochs. And what other landscape can match the unworldly appearance of Craters of the Moon NM & PRES?

Denali NP & PRES

Man did exert control over nature when the Grand Coulee Dam was built in 1941 across the Columbia River. Today, Lake Roosevelt NRA provides recreational opportunites without further degradation of natural and cultural resources.

National Park System Guide

Using This Map and Guide As of September 1, 2011, the National Park Service administered 395 parks. All are listed below and shown on the map (see other side). Abbreviations are included in the key (far right). Parks designated "national park and preserve" or "national monument and preserve" are two separate parks. Many parks are honored by the United Nations as internationally significant. They are indicated by the following symbols:
■ Biosphere Reserves are major scientific and educational ecosystems that protect the diversity of life.
▲ World Heritage Sites are examples of natural wonders or demonstrate outstanding human achievement.

Planning Your Visit Plan ahead, especially if you want to visit during popular seasons, join activities, camp or stay in park lodging, or go with a group. Many parks have online virtual tours and smartphone apps. For information, publications, reservations, permits, regulations, and services, contact the park or visit www.nps.gov.

Activities You may find interpretive talks, guided tours, festivals, Junior Ranger activities, and history or nature programs. Parks with activities like boating or horseback riding may not have equipment or horse rentals. Hunting and fishing are allowed in some national parks; state and federal regulations may apply.

Fees and Passes Fees may include entrance, camping, tour, boat launch, or other charges. National Parks and Federal Recreational Lands Passes are available at parks that charge entrance fees. Passes do not cover all fees.
